Under the title, "The Genius of West Point," Colonel Charles W. Larned, a distinguished United States officer, writes of the eminence that has been attained by graduates of West Point who have resigned from the army and retired to civil life. He gives the following list of 446 who have "arrived" at success: President of the United States. 1 President of the United States. 1 Presidential candidates. 2 Ambassadors 1 Ministers plenipotentiary 14 Charges d'affaires 2 United States consuls-general and consuls 12 Members of the Senate and House 24 Presidential electors 8 Governors of States and Territories 16

Civil War.

In comparison to this record set out in 1.357 pages of laudatory story, the State of Virginia is able to show that the history of her military school is certainly no less noteworthy.

The Virginia Military Institute was founded in 1839, thirty-seven years after West Point Military Academy, but practically upon the same plan and in a manner for the same purpose.

The instructors of the Institute were West Point graduates, and the rules.

The instructors of the Institute were West Point graduates, and the rules, regulations and customs of the school were, for the most part, those that obtained at West Point. It was and is primarily a military school, founded as a "military and scientific school," as the original scheme sets out, and since its foundation it has been known as the "West Point of the South." The Virginia Military Institute has the distinction of being the first military school that was established in the United States, with the exceptions of West Point school that was established in the United States, with the exceptions of West Point and Annapolis.

From its graduates a larger proportion of trained officers and soldiers have been furnished to the army, marine corps and national guard of the United States than any other civic college in America. Its record as a military and technical college will surpass that of any of its competitors, and the name of its greatest teacher, General Stonewall Jackson, will live as long as the world endures.

New Market Fight.

At the battle of New Market, on the 15th day of May, 1864, the corps of cadets, 250 strong, charged through grape, shrapnel, and double-shotted canister and captured a six-gun Union battery, losing in this magnificent charge proportionately more of their number than was lost in the famous charge of the 100 at Balakaya. Of this charge a braye Union of Of this charge a brave Union oficer. Captain Franklin E. Town, of New ficer, Captain Franklin E. Town, of New York, who was a participant in the action, has written as follows:

Standing on the crest of this slope after a short time, I observed a line forming in the ravine at the foot of the hill, which seemed about like a regiment in extent, but so "smart" and "natty" in appearance as instantly to suggest our own pet Seventh Regiment, of New York city. They appeared more like militia on parade than troops in campaign. We very soon were able to identify the command as the Battalion of the Virginia Military Institute, and certainly a more soldierly appearing corps never faced an enemy.

After perfecting their alignment, this young regiment advanced toward our bat tery. It approached only a short dis-tance, when it halted and turned back tery. It approached only a short distance, when it halted and turned back toward the ravine. There was no apparent disorder, nor did it seem that they were falling back in panie, but rather as if by some change of plan and in pursuance of orders.

The battalion remained but a short time in the ravine, and again advanced. They came on steadily up the slope, swept, as it was, by the fire of these guns. Their line was as perfectly preserved as if on dress parade or in the evolution of a review. As they advanced, our guns played with utmost vigor upon their line; at first with shrapnel; then, as they came nearer, with canister, and, finally, with double loads of canister. As the battalion continued to advance our guners loaded at the last, without stopping to sponge, and I think it would have been impossible to eject from six guns more missiles than these boys faced in their wild charge up that hill. But still they advanced steadily, without any sign of faltering. I saw, here and there, a soldier drop from their line and lie where he fell, as his comrades closed up the gaps and passed on. Their pace was increased from a quick-step to a double

V. M. I. shows nearly 25 per cent. of success.

Out of West Point's immense number of graduates, only seventy-eight were killed in hattle during the Civil War, while out of not more than half as many graduates, there were 130 killed and 250 maimed who called the Virginia Military Institute their ama mater.

With such a record of service and efficiency, the alumnit of the V. M. Judge Lewis, Representative Siemp, Colonel Pendleton, of Tazewell; Captain Stuart, of Newport News; Mr. George iv. Wise, of that city, and Mr. A. C. Peachy, of Newport News, have been here off and on for several days, looking after matters affecting patronage in Virginia. They settled a large item of the patronage account yesterday, when they saw Mr. Stuart transferred from the office of marshal of the Eastern District and made Collector of the Port of Newport News, while Mr. Treat was restored to his old place of marshal.

"The change is satisfactory to all concerned." said Judge Lewis to-day, "Captain Stuart would father have the office of collector of the port and it looked hard to remove Mr. Treat from an office the duties of which he had discharged in a most satisfactory manner. In short, Treat is pleased and Captain Stuart is pleased and we are all plessed."

Stuart is pleased and we are all plesed. There is one man, however, who cannot be overpleased at the result of the *nake-up, and that is A. C. Peachy, who appeared to have the office of collector within his grasp. There is nothing in sight for him, as, it is understood that Mr. Fred Read will not be appointed to the postmastership of Newport News, and that the referees have indorsed W. T. Hopkins for the position. Mr. Read's term expires some time this fall.

John S. Wise is another man who has lost out. He is responsible for the removal of Mr. Treat and the appointment of Captain Stuart to the marsnalship. Mr. Stuart sought the place of collector of the port, but it was said at the time, Mr. Wise had him appointed to, the marshalship, in order that Mr. Peachy, who is a relative or connection or the Wises, might be made collector. The Virginia Republicans resented the interference of a New Yorker in their local matters and while it was not in any sense a Democratic fight. I have heard Virginia Democrate express similar opinions.

Capfain Wise has lost out in another way that is amusing. He was making an effort to have a friend, who is said to be a kinsman, appointed postmaster at a certain place in Virginia. When the matter was taken up at the department it was discovered there was not an office at the place designated.

The fact that Mr. Arthur Seddon is to be appointed postmaster of Richmond to

It was pointed out to the President that Virginia Republicans are not represented in the consular service, a fact which did not seem to impress Mr. Roosevelt as greatly as his callers had hoped, as he did not make any positive promises. But did not make any positive promises. But he did say he would try to find a place for Mr. Gibbons. John Acker, Hugh S. Lupton and William B. King accompanied Mr. Slemp to see the President.
